

Have you considered a long-day lighting program for your farm?

By Chris Roelofsen,
Lighting Products Manager

Chris Roelofsen - Agricultural Lighting Products Manager for Canarm AgSystems - has been involved first-hand with all aspects of the agricultural industry, including owning & operating his own 2400 head Hog Nursery and helping to run the family dairy farm with his father.

Chris recently wrote an article for the October 2018 issue of Progressive Dairyman Canada magazine entitled Have you considered a long-day lighting program for your farm? In it, he discusses how advanced control systems and new lighting options help to maximize long-day lighting programs without the fear of wasting money by leaving the lights on.

Bumble B Dairy - 95 Head Calf Barn

Greg Busch and his sister Louie Rosseter

Cuba City, Wisconsin

"Built the calf barns – first one we built in 2008. Built the second one in 2012 due to expansion. Looked at several different options. Settled on the Canarm ones because they were very easy to assemble, easy to clean, very rugged, calf friendly, a lot of space. Dealt with the company. Very good company to deal with. Very helpful."

Easy-Choice Stalls

Protection for loose-housed sows.

The Easy-Choice sow stall gives a gestating sow protection while she's feeding in a loose sow-housing environment.

The stall is simple and strong, with only one pivot point. The sow enters when she wants to eat and a gate swings shut behind her to protect her. When she is done feeding, she backs up and the gate swings open, allowing her to leave into the loose sow pen.
